The Law of the Road.

Now that Pennsylvania arenue has at last been put in good condition, and that fast driving is the rule rather than the exception, owners and drivers of horses would do well to remember that on the street, and particularly at recognized crossing places, the rights of fast passengers are paramount. This has, we believe, been the law from time immemorial, and its principles have been recognized and enforced in every State in the Union where the question has come before the courts.

As to the mere offence of fast daving, that will doubties be taken care of by Judge Snell in the Police Court on due presentment; but the point we wish to impress upon horsemen is the important one that as between the foot passenger and the rider or driver of a horse, each going at a moderate rate of speed, the latter must always give way to the former. As an injury to person occurring through a violation or neglect of this rule would be certain to result in heavy damages to the in ured, drivers and riders will consult their own interest, and at the same time promote the comfort and safety of the public by bearing it in mind, and conforming their action accordingly.

One of the New York papers makes occasion to say, in an eracular and pharisaical manner, that the atmosphere of Washington "is not favorable to newspaper independence, or to the development of journalistic talent."

Possibly not; certainly not to the kinds of "independence" and "talent" which succeed best in New York. It is likely that in times past some rather discreditable developments have been made in regard to the management of newspapers in Washington, but nothing the tenth part so disgraceful or humiliating as the secret history of some of the so-called leading independent papers of New York recently made

The history of journalism throughout the whole world and for all time cannot show a parallel to the baseness and corruption which characterizes the editorial conduct of some of the New York papers boasting the widest circulation, according to the testimony of men who have taken part in their management. And it happens furthermore, as might be expected, that the record of the particular journa! from which the above quotation is made is conspicuously disgraceful and damaging.

The election in New Hampshire will take place on the 14th day of March next. The republicans have now completed their nominations. James Pike, the republican nominee for Governor, or Elder Pike, as he is more familtarly known, was born at Salisbury, Mass., in November, 1818. He was a representative from New Hampshire in the 34th and 35th Congresses, being a member at the same time as Messrs. Cragin and Tappan. There will be two opposition candidates in the field for Governor-labor reform and democratic. For Congress the following nominations have been made by the republicans:-In the first district, Wm. B. Small, a lawyer. In the second district, Hon. A. F. Stevens has been renominated, which is equivalent to an election. The nominee in the third district is Gen. Simon G. Griffin, a graduate of Dartmouth, and a lawyer by profession. He has a first-class war record, and has served several terms in the New Hampshire House of Representatives, and as Speaker of that body for two years.

The several committees of citizens having in charge the management of the proposed grand celebration in this city, on the 20th and 21st days of February next, are actively at work maturing their arrangements; and if their efforts are seconded by the community in the same confident and earnest spirit, the enterprise will result in a demonstration worthy of the Federal metropolis. The togies are thrown into a perspiration, as they always are, at the prospect of having to contribute a cent toward any movement to promote the interest of the city; but it is to be hoped that their croakings will be powerless in this case, and that the citizens of Washington will promptly respond to the call which will be made upon them by the Finance Com-

The proposition to erect a statue to Professor Morse, the inventer of the electric telegraph, in Washington, the field of his first success, seems to meet with favor in all quarters. The number of Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper for the 14th inst. has a cut of the model submitted by Mr. Stone, and says, in reference to it, that "the proposition to locate this charming piece of sculpture at the National Capital is eminently proper." We but give utterance to the general wish in expressing the hope that the Union Academy of Literature, Science, and Art, under whose auspices it has been inaugurated, will be able to push the enterprise to a successful termination at an early day.

Olive Logan and Wm. Wirt Sikes have jointly Lought a house in New York.
